

Adaro Group Legal Services Internship Program June 2016

Who are we?

Adaro Energy Group (“Adaro”) is an Indonesian vertically integrated energy group of companies that owns and operates an integrated “pit to port to power” business model through its ultimate holding company, PT Adaro Energy Tbk, a publicly listed company at the Indonesia Stock Exchange, and its more than forty (40) subsidiaries. Adaro is fully dedicated to own, build and operate a power business fit for the future of Indonesia, creating and making use of synergies among our coal production, mining services and land, and marine logistic supply chain, from the pits of our coal mines, through our ports and terminal operations, to our power generation facilities.

Adaro Group Legal Services (“AGLS”) is a corporate function within PT Adaro Energy Tbk, comprising of more than thirty (30) professionally appraised lawyers who are placed at Adaro’s key operational centers in Jakarta, Tanjung (South Kalimantan) and abroad, that is entrusted and assigned to handle and administer all legal affairs of Adaro.

What are we looking for?

AGLS wishes to invite potential qualified participants to a three (3) months internship program organized by AGLS (“AGLS Internship Program”). We are therefore seeking for candidates who excel academically, strongly committed and possess good work ethics to participate in the AGLS Internship Program. If you are (i) in your 6-8th semester or have just recently graduated, and (ii) have a GPA of at least 3.25, you may be well placed to be qualified.

How to Participate In The AGLS Internship Program

Please electronically send us your application letter together with your curriculum vitae, acknowledgement letter from FHUI and academic transcript to AdaroIP@adaro.com at the least by 2.00pm on 20 May 2016.

Why should you join?

The AGLS Internship Program gives real-life working experience in a productive and interesting corporate environment of a publicly-listed blue chip group. The AGLS Internship Program is designed to enable participants to have a taste of working in a law-firm-like setting. The program requires participants to directly deal and confront with challenges of the legal profession by protecting and serving the interests of clients of AGLS. It also provides an opportunity to apply knowledge obtained at law school into real practice and to implement legal research skills. The AGLS Internship Program is programmed to have participants work as and in a team work experience in a guided fashion. A number of outstanding participants of the AGLS Internship Program have ultimately been offered a place within AGLS after successful completion of the AGLS Internship Program.

Indra Purnamawanta FHUI '90

“Adaro is a sophisticated coal mining and energy group of companies. It has the largest single-site coal mine in the southern hemisphere and more than forty subsidiaries plus thousands of employees. The integrated pit-to-port-to-power operations and activities involves a ground spectrum of legal aspects and poses a real challenge professionally. There are more than enough reasons to went to learn and experience more in fact, AGLS is more intense than a law firm.”

Erwin Sundoro FHUI '95

“Working as Lawyer in Adaro is different in a good way. We work in a law firm environment rather than a regular in-house environment. As a matter of fact, it is beyond a law firm. You are directly involved in business decision making, rather than just following instructions.”

Anna Marthin Marpaung FHUI '98

“Adaro is a group of companies engaged in coal mining and power generation and everything in between, with tons of knowledge, because of the diversity of its business activities, Adaro provides wide opportunities to obtain apply legal knowledge relating to various business sectors especially natural resources.”

Danny M. Hafid FHUI '04

“Being part of Adaro, especially in the Adaro Group Legal Services, is a valuable experience. Each person on the team is expected not only to be an expert in their field, but also to be proficient in the related business aspects of every transaction. We are trained to be multi-talented lawyers.”

Rio Panggabumi FHUI '07

“Getting work experience in the largest publicly listed integrated coal mining group in Indonesia is an extremely valuable experience. The knowledge obtained is not only related to mining law issues, but also laws relating to the environment, forestry, marine transportation, electricity and many more.”

Ray A. Singgih FHUI '07

“Adaro Group Legal Services should be regarded as a “first class” training ground for one who wishes to become a good lawyer.”

Risha Emyta FHUI '10
